

The marketplace has proven to be a better arbiter of many issues than government regulation, and the broadcast flag is another instance where unneeded regulation will only cloud the issue. If the industry believes it is valuable to have a broadcast flag, let the industry subsidize the purchase of sets with the flag enabled. The role of the FCC is to ensure a level playing field in telecommunications, not to favor one side over another.